Re; Proposed loss of green belt.

Dear Jeni,

This nations economy is overly London/SE centric. It is a weakness due to a lack of infrastructure between the other major cities of the country.

The SE of England is already short of green spaces for the population that exist here and the proposed loss of green belt is contrary to its very purpose of existence.

I would encourage all those in WBC to argue the case for developing areas away from the SE and retaining the Green belt for the very reasons it was allocated this status.

At a local level;

GB13 'reasoned justification' states the GBBR does not recommend this land for development but will provide a 'cushion' in scenarios of 'non implementation'.

This is not a reasoned statement.

It does not justify loss of green belt.
